

Issues Identified in the 2014 AASHTO Strategic Planning Process

The new AASHTO strategic plan articulates the new strategic goals, and includes the following core values – safety-focused, innovative and adaptable, collaborative, accountable, and service oriented.

Concerns identified during the development of the AASHTO strategic plan in 2014, include the following:

- Complicated organizational structure and inconsistencies between committee procedures and organization
- Lack of guidance from parent committees; lack of clarity on purpose and/or goals of committees; desire for greater focus on national-level issues
- Need for more nimble responses to changing industry/state DOTs needs and technologies;
- Desire to build a more multi-modal-thinking organization
- Ability to address state DOT issues and concerns across committee “silos”; need to enhance collaboration and creative problem solving
- Need to ensure ongoing participation and support of the state DOTs and their volunteers who make up the AASHTO committee membership
